

Exemptions from the TOEFL Examination

International applicants are required to provide evidence of English-speaking ability. This may be done by submitting an official TOEFL, IELTS, or Pearson's Test of Academic English exam score. The University recognizes certain international countries as being English-speaking and will exempt applicants who are citizens of, or who have earned an undergraduate degree from, submitting a TOEFL/IELTS/Pearson's score. The University will also consider requests to exempt international applicants, who have completed a four-year bachelor's degree or a two-year masters' degree within the USA, from the TOEFL/IELTS/Pearson's score requirement. To request this exemption, submit an e-mail with evidence in support of this request to gschool@olemiss.edu
