I hereby grant the University of Mississippi and its agents the non-exclusive license to archive and make viewable and accessible, under the conditions specified below, my above listed thesis or dissertation, in whole or in part, in all forms of media, now and hereafter known. I retain ownership rights to the copyright of the thesis or dissertation. I also retain the right to use all or part of the above document in future works.

In addition to the unrestricted display of the bibliographic information and the abstract, I agree that the above document be placed in the Electronic Thesis and Dissertation archive managed by ProQuest/UMI with the following status. (Choose one of the options below. It is the responsibility of the student to select the same publishing options when uploading the document to the ProQuest/UMI system.)

Traditional Publishing: This means that the thesis or dissertation title and author (citation information) will be listed on the ProQuest/UMI online database. The full content will be viewable by authorized PQ users by paid subscription and by University of Mississippi students, faculty, and staff (via the UM Library's PQ license). Others will have viewing access only to the title page, abstract, and first few pages. Others may purchase full access by paying a royalty to the student author.

Traditional Publishing with an Embargo Period: This means that the thesis or dissertation title and author will be listed on the ProQuest/UMI online database. However, further viewing access to the thesis or dissertation is blocked for the embargo period, which may be selected to be six months, one year, or two years. Select this option if your work includes patentable and/or proprietary information or if you are in one of a few disciplines where publication of a thesis/dissertation may deter acceptance of a manuscript by a journal. Confer with your advisor, if you are uncertain. At the end of the embargo period, the thesis/dissertation will become accessible through PQ. Select embargo period six months                       one year                       two years

Open Access Publishing: This means that the full text of the document is immediately made viewable (published) by ProQuest/UMI. The consequence is that your scholarship is more widely disseminated and becomes searchable by Internet search engines. It also means that you are unlikely to earn royalty from the sale of your document by PQ and you will be charged an open access fee by PQ.
